Procapil™ (Hair Fluence Tripeptides)

CLAIM SUBSTANTIATION

in vitro

STIMULATION OF CELL METABOLISM

MITOSIS RATE

Evaluation of root sheath keratinocytes after a 14-day culture of hair follicles. Biotinyl-GHK (2 ppm) stimulates Ki-67 expression, indicating enhanced cell proliferation.

GENE EXPRESSION

PROCAPIL® promotes the expression of numerous genes involved in tissue repair mechanisms (DNA-array on 3D SkinEthic® epidermis).

Gene	Activity	Activation
Laminin binding protein	Adhesion	+140%
Acetyl CoA transferase	Cell metabolism	+137%
Cytokeratine 10	Differentiation	+154%

HAIR ANCHORING

Hair follicles are incubated for 14 days with biotinyl-GHK (2 ppm). Morphological observation of the dermis/root sheath junction. Laminin 5 and collagen IV are revealed by immunofluorescence.

Presence of adhesion molecules	T14 Control	T14 PROCAPIL®
Laminin 5	+	+++
Collagen IV	+	++++

PROCAPIL® provides a protecting and repairing effect on the structure components of the hair follicle, slowing down the aging process.

STIMULATION OF HAIR GROWTH

Hair follicles are incubated for 14 days with biotinyl-GHK or minoxidil (2 ppm).

Biotinyl-GHK is as efficient as minoxidil at the same concentration (2ppm).

The persisting dermis/root sheath junction is thick and recovers its normal sinusoidal shape.

after 4 months

68% volunteers had an improvement in the anagen hair density

Lively hair
for men and women

TEST ON MALE VOLUNTEERS

• Videotrichogramme

The proportion of hair observed in anagen phase (A) and telogen phase (T) was determined and the ratio A/T established. Hair samples were taken and analysed. n=35 males with alopecia (Tmean=28%) applied a hair lotion with 3% PROCAPIL® (n=18) or a placebo (n=17) twice daily for 4 months.

A/T (Mean values)	PROCAPIL® on male panel	PLACEBO
T0	2.84	2.61
T4 months	3.13	2.54

• Hair follicle morphological study

After treatment, hair bulb cells were found to be highly structured and differentiated. The root sheath was thicker and more able to provide optimum anchoring.

Hair anti-ageing can be promoted by stimulation of follicle cell metabolism, leading to a slow down in hair loss.

TEST ON FEMALE VOLUNTEERS

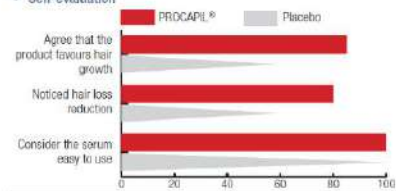

• Videotrichogramme

The proportion of hair observed in anagen phase (A) and telogen phase (T) was determined and the ratio A/T established. Hair samples were taken and analysed. n=42 females (FTL grade 1-2) applied a serum with 3% PROCAPIL® (n=21) or a placebo (n=21) for 4 months with a massage, min. 3 times a week.

A/T (Mean values)	PROCAPIL® on female panel	PLACEBO
T0	5.08	4.85
T4 months	9.57	6.17

Procapil® promotes the slow down in hair loss by increasing the anagen hair while reducing the telogen hair for both male and female volunteers.

• Self-evaluation

The tested formulation was totally accepted by the panel. The volunteers perceived the benefits of the serum on the density of their hair.

FORMULATION water soluble

Add in the water phase between room temperature and 65°C.

Can also be incorporated in hair oils. Contact us for formulation recommendations.
